THE FUTURE GREAT BRITAIN OF THE PACIFIC.—The geographical similarity that subsists between Japan and England strikes the observant reader at a glance. R. H. Dana, Jr., in his entertaining letters, describes the former country as the Great Britain of the "East." Its three islands will answer to the three chief divisions of Great Britain, its continent being the continent of Asia. China is its France, and its corresponding Denmark, Sweden and Russia are found in the Corea, Manchouria, the Amoor region, and the Russian dependencies. Japan does not even want the English characteristics of lanes lined with hedgerows, "straight, close-clipped and gleaming with hedges," while the English ivy and the creeping box and vine enshroud the trunks of the trees, garnish the branches, cover the stone walls, creep up the sides and over the roofs of houses," all indicating a humid, temperate and equable climate. There is only needed a second William of Normandy to invade Japan, and, overrunning her territory with foreign hordes, to establish upon the ruins of the barbarism thus supplanted the social and political institutions of the predominant races, to complete the simile. When the Ship Canal across the Isthmus of Suez is completed, reviving, as it assuredly will, the glories of the ancient empires now fallen into decadence, and when the vast North American continent shall be seamed with the iron artery which is to magnify the commerce of this republic to an extent before unheard of, those islands and the adjacent coasts must sustain a part in the world's affairs quite as important as that of England in bygone time.

A grand obstacle in the way of progress in that direction is the invincible repugnance of the semi-barbarous nations to intercourse with Christians; but Christianity, it is said, is at last obtaining a foothold even in China, and if all that has been done to accomplish that result is not sufficient, the obstructing races will be swept from the path like chaff before the whirlwind. We predict that twenty years will not have passed when Americans and other foreigners will own extensive wharves and warehouses in the principal cities, and build their elegant villas upon the picturesque hillsides of Japan and China, while ships in their service will ride secure at anchor in the bays. Give us the Suez Canal and the Pacific Railroad, and while commerce, bringing in her train thousands of peaceful representatives of William the Conqueror, acts as civilizer, we shall witness such a general alteration in the aspect of the world's affairs, as was never anticipated by the most sanguine of prophets.

DIFFERENCE TO DIFFERENCE.—When you see that men differ from you in opinion on different subjects, do not condemn them on that score. Consider that uncommon men have uncommon ideas; men who study certain subjects must certainly differ in their opinions on these subjects from men who merely judge cursorily. Also remember that all common ideas were once uncommon; and that the best and greatest men were oddities in their age, and were hated and persecuted on the ground of that singularity. You may well be able to judge about the fashion of your coat, about the flavor of your cigar, about the card you play, the woman you like, and the gig you drive. But never judge, much less condemn, those who move in a sphere of which you have as little idea, and for which you have as little feeling as a child has for sexual love. True, you say you judge by common sense, and you are right to measure common things by a common measure. But stop with common sense, when the question is about uncommon subjects. If common sense alone is to be the measure why should the lawyer and the philosopher spend years in the study of uncommon subjects. Therefore pay some deference to difference, on subjects which require uncommon knowledge, and not merely "common sense."

The Bachelor and the Lace Veil.

Here is a story that some of our lady readers will be amused with:

An English gentleman who had lost a bet with a lady, having heard her say that she had lost a lace veil which she prized very much, concluded that he would pay the debt and "do the polite thing," by purchasing a new veil and presenting it to his fair creditor.

It must be stated that the gentleman was a bachelor of long standing, and a man of little information touching the world of "fancy goods," though a proficient in sugar, cotton, and provision speculation.

He accordingly stepped into a fashionable milliner's establishment, and asked to see a lace veil of fine quality.

"Here is one, Monsieur," said the amiable priestess at the head of the temple.

"How much is it?"

"It is only fifty, sir."

"What! only fifty? Dear me! I thought those things were exceedingly dear. If that is all they cost, I do not wonder at the ladies being fond of wearing such flimsy knick-knacks. Only fifty! Show me something better."

The priestess started. The bachelor remained perfectly cold. Here was a godsend—a man who wanted something better, dearer—more veils—lace ones—were displayed.

"Dis is only sixteen, sir, and dis one only seventy-five."

"Dear me! only seventy-five! Well, that is wonderful, to be sure! It is a very pretty article, I see, but can't you show me something better?"

"No, sir, dis is the most dear—de plus cher article in de citee."

"You don't say so! Well, well, who would have thought it? These women—they always were a mystery since the days of Adam. Give me the change for a dollar—in quarters."

The milliner did so.

"I'll take this one," said the simple-minded bachelor, folding up the seventy-five veil "Give me a quarter, and keep the change."

"I do not see the seventy-five, sir—you have no handed them to me," said the milliner.

"I beg your pardon, ma'am," said the bachelor, "there they are on the counter," pointing to the three quarters.

"Dis?" said the milliner, with an astonished look.

"That!" said the bachelor, more smiling than ever, preparing to put the veil in his pocket.

"Ah, mon Dieu, de man fou—crack brain. I tell you, Monsieur, dat article de most dear in de citee. You no understand me—you no understand English! De most dear, I tell you—seventy-five dollar!"

"What!" said the bachelor, turning rather pale, and dropping the veil as if it had suddenly turned into a coal of fire in his hands, "seventy-five dollars!"

"Yes, sir, and very cheap at dat!"

"Seventy-five dollars for that infernal cobweb! I thought that you meant seventy-five cents!"

If ever a bachelor walked fast, that bachelor did. He goes around now in a stew of indignation, relating his adventure, and winding up his story with the words—

"Yes, sir, the French woman actually asked me seventy-five dollars for the short end of an infernal cobweb!"

An inexperienced bachelor going into a fancy milliner's store is pretty much like an innocent fly venturing into a spider's web.

CORRESPONDENCE.

Communications of general interest to the public, will not be refused insertion in the Colonist on account of differing with the views of the paper, provided that they are brief and to the point.

Saturday Morning, Nov. 3, 1860.

Nominative Council.

The project of giving a nominative and elective Council to British Columbia, meets with few supporters beyond its projectors. In fact, wholly nominative Councils have ever been an unmitigated evil in the colonies; and a partially nominative and partially elective council would produce in British Columbia the same results. Allowing that such a Council were organized with fifteen members—five nominated, and ten elected—the nominated or irresponsible five would merely do the bidding of an irresponsible Executive, and means would not be wanting to get three elective members to support their policy. Thus a working majority would be attained, whilst the views of the minority if adverse to the Executive, would be treated with indifference. Were such a mixed Council, therefore, organized; and were it divided as we have shown it to be possible, such representation of the people would be nothing but a mockery, a delusion, and a snare. It would simply be a sham. The people would have the shadow; but irresponsible members of Council would have the substance.

Nothing but a blind adherence to theory; opposition to a practical and enlightened consideration of the social difference between a colony and the Mother Country ever established nominative Councils. In England the elements of aristocracy exist. Society is cut up into classes. There is great wealth on one extreme, and great poverty on the other; and a wealthy, intelligent and powerful middle class, from which aristocracy is recruited. Traditions of centuries and the associations of generations, combined with immemorial custom, secure for aristocracy respect, whilst their intelligence and patriotism insures toleration. But colonies are deficient in these elements. They have no titled class; no hereditary lawgivers; no landed aristocracy; no extremes of wealth; the inhabitants belong not to an aristocratic caste; and when they left the mother country to plant free institutions in a distant land, they left all aristocratical distinctions behind them; there was an end to them of the social divisions of the land of their birth. In their new home they breathe a different atmosphere; they are a new people—republicans under monarchy—too new even to have a history. Take British Columbia—where is the aristocratic element there? There is none. Society is one level. They are all productive, and from the productive class the legislature must be filled. Where are her men of wealth and leisure? She has none.

The accumulation of wealth, either as merchants, traders, miners, mechanic or farmer, engross the whole time of the population. No social line is drawn except the moral line; nor no other line can be defined.—Were she represented to-morrow, she would be but a republic under the protection of monarchy, like all other British colonies. Without the vestige then of an aristocratical element, is it not folly to make a nominative council, colonial peers, a kind of bastard imitation of the Imperial House of Lords? Socially it is so. But politically, a nominative council would be an unmitigated evil. In a society essentially republican, the people expect—they will have—nor will they rest till they make their law-givers the representatives of their feelings, their sentiments, and their interests. No irresponsible council, constituted from the appointees of a Governor in whose appointment they had no voice, will prove acceptable to the country. Theory—a miserable attempt to nominate a petty House of Lords—would be treated with disdain. What, shall we change the wilderness into fruitful fields by our industry, to have forced upon us a nominated council? not the men of our choice? Who are not responsible to us? Whom we cannot remove, and whose term of office is during life and good behavior? No matter how hostile to our feelings, how opposed to our sentiments, or how antagonistic to our interests—are we to be dictated to by this irresponsible body? Such would be the exclamatory interrogatories of British Columbia, as they are now of Vancouver Island. The decree has gone forth—the rulers, one and all, must be responsible to the people. Nominated councillors would not be responsible. Therefore the people would not be satisfied with nominated councillors.

An Upper House, or Legislative Council, may act as a wholesome check on the Lower Branch. But it should be elective. The people, then, would have a voice in their selection. If at the end of their term of five or six years they were found opposed to the views of their constituents, others would fill their places. Thus they are made responsible for their acts. Having a longer term of office, and elected from a larger district than the members of the Assembly—a part of the Council vacating their seats every two years to admit a new element fresh from the people to take part in their deliberations—the Council would keep pace with the progress of the people; and yet preserve a progressive-conservative element to check any extreme measures from the more popular and powerful branch—the Assembly.

A nominative Council is an useless check in a colony, when against a majority of the Assembly. They may threaten to throw out a popular measure, and yet be unable to put the threat in execution. If the Governor sides with the Assembly (and if not, he is denied supplies), he nominates enough councillors more to pass the measure; and it is passed. Such a Council, then, is no check. Did an elective Council exist, it would be a real check. The Governor would have no prerogative to nominate; whilst the Council elected by the people would act independently of either the Executive or the Assembly, and consult only their constituents. If we ever expect to have our political fabric constituted properly, we must have an elective Council, and so must British Columbia. To secure it more speedily, let us have union.

Our Present Prosperity.

There is a trite old saying, long passed into a proverb, that the darkest hour is just before the dawn. Applied to our own and the sister colony, how applicable the proverb seems. The dark days of the fall of 1858, and the succeeding ones of 1859, have passed away; and the summer of 1860 has opened up to the gaze of the world a new era in our history. During the season now drawing to a close, the discoveries in our sister colony have given rise to new hopes in the minds of all who had cast their lots in either colony; and the dreams of many who had long cherished the belief that all would be well, have at last been realized to their fullest extent. On all sides the work of improvement is going on rapidly and surely. Men no longer hang back and delay the investing of their means until the arrival of the "next news from the mines." Building after building rises like magic, as it were, ready-made from the bowels of the earth. Town lots are bought and sold at what a year ago would have been deemed fabulous prices; and the great work of converting a wilderness into a colony teeming with an industrious and enterprising population, goes on with a rapidity fairly astonishing. In short, confidence, once so seldom expressed by even the most sanguine, has been firmly established. The "fittful fever" of rash speculation has gone by, we trust forever, and the country is being established on a solid, safe, and sure foundation.

To the discovery of rich gold placers in the Similkameen, Quesnelle, and Cariboo countries, and the announcement of the fact that nearly all the great benches or flats on the Fraser River banks have proved, upon examination, to be lasting, instead of (as at first supposed) superficial diggings, are we indebted in the main for this prosperity. The silver mines, too, "struck" during the past summer in the Port Douglas and Fort Hope neighborhoods, have also exerted a favorable influence, but one not near so powerful as that of the gold discoveries, for the reason that they have not yet been sufficiently tested to allow us to form a correct idea of their extent. The promulgation of the fact that a large area of country, lying north of Thompson River, and between the Rocky and Cascade ranges of mountains, is fine farming and grazing land, capable of supporting a large population and of yielding a bounteous supply of the necessities of life in return for the labors of the husbandman, has also done much towards adding to the general confidence now felt by all classes in our sister colony.

In the midst, however, of the general rejoicing and prosperity, we must take care and not wring the neck of the goose that is engaged in laying the golden eggs. Exertion must be made towards fostering and encouraging the various resources of our sister colony. Early next spring, when the first blades of grass have commenced to sprout in the valleys, and while the snow is still melting from the mountain-tops and sending down an aqueous flood to mingle with the waters of the Fraser, the work of building trails should be prosecuted with vigor. Something, we are free to admit, has been done during the season just gone by to further the great work; but a tithe of what may be done has not yet been accomplished. The government must continue to exert itself, and open up the rich fields that have lain idle since the world's creation, or the country will retrograde instead of advance. "Progress!" should be its motto—and that motto should be adhered to in all things and on all occasions. The people are sick and tired of hearing of what may be done, or what will be accomplished. They want something tangible on which to found their hopes and their projects; and without such demonstrations we can never continue for any length of time in the enjoyment of our present prosperity.

GOOD RIDDANCE.—The poor wretch commonly known as "Scotty," but whose proper name is James Brown, was yesterday sentenced by the police magistrate to three months' imprisonment as a vagrant—he having been arrested in the morning by Sergt. Carey, while cursing some individual who had aroused his wrath. In jail he will be out of the reach of liquor, the too free use of which has proved his ruin.

SUDDEN DEATH.—R. Cooper, formerly a miner upon Texas Bar, Fraser River, and afterwards a Fort Hope merchant, died suddenly at the latter place on Monday last, of paralysis. He had just returned from a visit to Victoria when he was stricken, and soon after died. He is said to have been a worthy, hardworking man, and possessed of considerable property in Sacramento, California.

"What Cheer House

CHARGE OF FALSE PRETENCES.—Attorney-General Cary was yesterday served with a summons to appear in the Police Court, at 12 o'clock on Monday next, and answer a charge of obtaining money under false pretences from Justice E. E. Langford. This case grows out of the libel suit of Langford vs. King, which was to have been tried last Spring, but which was thrown out of Court on account of the plaintiff refusing to produce his account-books when ordered to do so by the Chief Justice. A bill of costs was afterwards made out by the Attorney General, and Mr. Langford was compelled to pay the amount of said bill, which was about $500. Mr. Langford now declares that £22 of that amount was not paid for witnesses, etc., (as alleged in the bill), and so prefers a charge against Mr. Cary of obtaining money under false pretences. Some fifteen witnesses have been summoned to give evidence before the police magistrate. The case promises to be very interesting.

FAREWELL DINNER.—A farewell dinner was given last evening, to Captain A. Murray, on the occasion of his leaving for Australia. Some sixty gentlemen, representing the elite of this city, sat with the guest of the evening, Captain Murray, to a well spread table, laid by our host, of the Colonial Restaurant. Amid the feast of reason and flow of soul, the convivialities were kept up to a late hour.

The dinner was a demonstration of respect which Capt. Murray has well earned. He is one of our pioneer steam boat captains. By his energy and enterprise the British Columbia Steam Navigation Company was organized and elevated to its present high state of efficiency. The community is largely indebted to Capt. Murray, and his universal popularity speaks volumes in his favor. He leaves for Australia on Monday, and will return in the spring.

NEW TRAIL.—By a trader from Lytton City, we learn that a new trail has recently been struck along the valley of Thompson River which entirely does away with the Hat River route. By this trail a crossing is made 25 miles from the mouth of the Thompson, and the Brigade trail is easily reached without crossing a spur of the Cascades, as was formerly done. The road is nearly level, and so low that no snow will interfere with winter travel. In consequence of this discovery, the project of building a bridge near the mouth of Thompson River, has been abandoned.

A FAREWELL.—The members of the Tiger Engine Company being desirous of bidding farewell to Captain Murray, who leaves to-day for Australia, intend meeting at the Engine House, at 12 o'clock, for the purpose of giving him a parting cheer and a "God speed" on his journey.

THE CASE IN CHANCERY.—In the Court of Chancery, yesterday afternoon, Attorney General Cary concluded his argument for the defence, in the case of Phillips et al. vs. Green. The delivery of the argument lasted five days. On Monday next, Mr. Ring will commence his argument for the plaintiffs.

COLONIAL THEATRE.—"Rob Roy," with all the original music, the tableaux, dances, and military movements, will be performed this evening. The performance will commence with the farce of "Perfection; or the Maid of Munster."

FREIGHT REDUCED.—Freight to Port Douglas, on the steamer Henrietta, has been reduced to $6 per ton, thus affording the Cayoush merchants an opportunity to lay in their winter stock at a trifling cost.

DEPARTURE OF THE "SEA NYMPH."—The British bark Sea Nymph will leave this afternoon for Australia, with a full cargo of spars and lumber for that market.

H. M. Corvette Alert will leave on Monday for the Sandwich Islands. A mail for those places will be made up at the Post Office.

HEAVY SHIPMENT.—The heaviest shipment of gold dust ever made from Victoria, was per the steamship Oregon, on Sunday last. The amount was $92,834.

"SCIENTIFIC PRESS."—J. Silversmith, formerly a music-teacher of this city, is now publishing a daily paper, call the Scientific Press, in San Francisco.

The gunboat Forward left for San Juan yesterday morning, on business connected with the British garrison at that island.

SUPREME COURT. A session of the Supreme Court of Civil Justice will be held on Monday, the 12th day of November.

A mail will be sent to Australia by the bark Sea Nymph to-day. Get your letter ready!

The Otter left last evening for Fraser River, carrying freight and a few passengers.

Mr. Bright on Governmental Expenses.

Mr. Bright, M. P., in replying to a letter recently sent by an association known as the "Northern Reform Union," which had passed a vote of thanks for his speech in the House of Commons against Lord Palmerston's resolution to fortify the coast of England, says:

"I am much pleased at the resolution you have sent me. I am only sorry that our efforts have met with so little success in the House of Commons. During many sessions and above all, since the commencement of the war against Russia they have disdained to stay the lavish waste of public resources has been branded as anti-patriotic and anti-national. The people have been deceived and blinded more than they ever were before, and those who should have been their servants and preserved the public revenues have become their masters and spoilers. I do not know when things will change; but we cannot continue in this manner without great danger and running the risk of great disasters. Perhaps we shall see commerce meet with great reverses and distresses which will compel us to pay attention to the enormous sums yearly drawn from the national industry. England with a population of thirty millions will pay this year seventy-two millions of pounds sterling of Governmental taxes, while the United States, whose population is estimated at thirty-two millions of people will pay but twelve millions of pounds for Governmental taxes. How long can England support this heavy burden and what institution in England is worth a tribute of sixty millions sterling a year? The time will come when the people will perceive that monarchies and aristocracies cost too dear. Monarchies and aristocracies never become wiser."

AUCTION SALE.—On Monday next, at 11 o'clock, J. A. McCrea, auctioneer, will sell at his salesroom, Wharf street, a choice assortment of tobacco, apples and provisions.

NO QUORUM.—There was no quorum yesterday at the House of Assembly.

Death of the Earl of Lauderdale.

The Earl of Lauderdale expired at Thirlstone Castle, Lauder, on Wednesday morning, at a little past seven o'clock. His Lordship had been but in indifferent health for a year past, but was able, up till within a few weeks, to take short walks through his policies. Latterly he was driven out, and we believe he took a short drive only a day or two before his sudden demise. His medical attendant had been with him during the night, but had left before the morning. About seven o'clock he expressed a desire for a cup of coffee, and while it was being prepared, the bell was violently rung, and his attendants, on entering, found him dead, with the bell-pull in his hand. It is somewhat remarkable that the presently deceased nobleman's father, the eighth Earl, James, died also suddenly and unseen at the ripe age of eighty. James Maitland, ninth Earl of Lauderdale, was born in 1784, and succeeded his father in September 1839. He was never married, and throughout his lengthened life he took very little part in public affairs, offering thus a great contrast to his father, and to his many distinguished ancestors. By hereditary honor he was the Standard-Bearer of Scotland, and was also Lord-Lieutenant of Berwickshire, but, save the conscientious discharge of the duties of the latter office, he mingled not much in the busy tide of public life. He was a keen sportsman and hunter up to middle age, and kept a pack of harriers till about twenty-five years ago, when he gave up the chase in consequence of an accident by which he had a very narrow escape with his life. No man in the Merse of Berwickshire could ride or judge a horse better than Lord Lauderdale. In person he was well made, square, strong and athletic, and till the latter end of his life could outwalk for a day with the gun any of his keepers. In manners he was somewhat stern and haughty to those who did not know him, and thoroughly manly and independent in his bearing to every one. He was a liberal subscriber to all public charities and institutions, while his hand was not stinted at home to the poor around his gate. The late nobleman was much attached to his estate, to which he made considerable additions during his lifetime. The lands lie mostly to the west and north-east of the town of Lauder, and much of the extent is hilly and moorish, except in the vale, where there is excellent land, and in a high state of cultivation. The whole yearly rental of the estates amounted in 1834 to about £9000; and at present they cannot yield less than £14,000, an increase to be attributed, however, more to the additions alluded to than to any very marked agricultural improvements. Deceased is succeeded by his brother, Admiral Sir Anthony Maitland, who was born 10th June, 1785, and is therefore little more than a year younger than his brother. He too is unmarried. As the title is granted by patent to the heirs male of the grantee, on the death of Sir Anthony the title will go to Admiral Sir Thomas Maitland, who is a son of General William Maitland, a son of the seventh Earl, and a brother of the celebrated "King Tom of Malta." Only a small portion of the estate was lately entailed, but it is rumored that the whole, or nearly the whole, has been now entailed by the late Earl, to keep up the dignity of the old title.—Scotsman.

The Paris "Siecle" on Italian Affairs.

Several of the Paris journals remark on the proclamation of King Victor Emmanuel and the entrance of the Piedmontese troops into the States of the Church. Says the Paris Siecle of 14th September.

The importance of this decision cannot escape the attention of any one; it is the commencement of a new phase of the Italian question. We offer up our ardent prayers that the intervention of Piedmont may not lead to any other. The plan of the Italian counter-revolution, as we have frequently pointed out, was precisely by its excess to force Piedmont to assume a decided position, and with her usual chivalric feelings she has now done so. Between her and the adventures of all nations who have placed themselves in the pay of Italian counter-revolution, the question cannot be doubtful. Many persons ask themselves whether it would not have been better to have allowed the people to have effected their work of emancipation, and thus have not given any pretext for foreign intervention? Europe has, however, witnessed all the facts as they have taken place. She knows from which side the provocations have come—she is aware who has compared the revolution to Islamism, and who has preached up a crusade against the enfranchisement of Italy. We hope that she will know how to make due allowance for the necessities which so many provocations have created for King Victor Emmanuel, and for the dangers which Italian order and Catholicism itself would have incurred, if a regular government had not prevented the disorderly struggle which was about to break out.

A rumor is generally current that certain Powers would not regard with displeasure the intervention of the king, which would appear to them of a nature to lead more speedily to a European understanding. It is true that the Patrie has given the most formal contradiction to the Independence of Brussels which gave this report, and affirms that all the Powers consider the entrance of Piedmont into the Papal States as a revolution of the law of nations. Nevertheless, if it is so isolated as the Patrie says, no one can explain to himself why Piedmont had not waited patiently until the force of events had brought about a conflict between the troops of General Garibaldi and those of General Lamoriciere. She might, if she had only listened to the dictates of the narrow instinct of self-preservation, have remained a spectator of that struggle, and profited by it at her ease. Very powerful moral interests must have decided her to interfere. Events will explain what those interests are. The motives which have determined the action of the Sardinian army in the Marshes are pointed out by the proclamation of Victor Emmanuel to his soldiers, and particularly by the repetitions of the scenes of Perugia at Fossombrone.

DR. ADOLPHUS'

ANTI-RHEUMATIC CORDIAL

—AND—

Health Restorative

IS THE MOST VALUABLE AND UN- surpassed remedy for Rheumatism and Gout to be found in the world, or known at present. The discoverer of the above medicine does claim its infallibility in all cases of Rheumatism and Gout—when used according to direction—and does offer a reward of five hundred dollars to any medicine that does supersede it, and is entirely vegetable. The Doctor is enabled to offer the above reward on account of his having used the above medicine for ten years in the cure of the most protracted cases of Rheumatism and Gout, and withstood all known remedies to the profession. Doctor Adolphus is known and rightly celebrated throughout the State, for his cures in Rheumatism, Gout and Chronic Diseases, and has only to the continued urgent efforts of his patients, and through the desire to help them who are not enabled to see him personally, or to spend a fortune to get rid of the disease, which they have contracted in the pursuit of their daily calling; on the 1st Dec. he has been able to pierce the veil of the Deity to give the above medicine to the public, and at such terms that every suffering one should be able to reap its benefits.

As a Health Restorative its value supercedes all the mineral wealth and riches of California, and is creating a revolution in the whole treatment of disease throughout the world.

In secondary and tertiary Syphilis, Scrofula, Enlargement of the Glands, Dropsy, and all Nervous and Cutaneous Diseases, and the whole train of Chronic Diseases, which withstand and baffle the skill of the most excellent and learned physician in the world; in Chronic Diseases whose very name is a terror as well to the physician as to the patient, this medicine has proved to be superior to any in existence, and has cured in so short a time that they appeared like being abolished by magic influence, and in fact a few more such discoveries, and druggists will not need to keep a lot of useless medicines on hand, whenever they are prescribed once in a ten score they have lost through time their properties in which their value did reside. If there was actually any in them.

Take this medicine when your digestive organs are disordered and your blood is impure, it will surely act on your bowels.

Take this medicine when you have a cold, and it will make you perspire freely.

Take this medicine when your urinary and absorbing organs are disordered, and it will act on your kidneys—it penetrates every part of your body, searches even the most remote and secret recesses of your system, and removes the disease located there—it restores healthy action and gives tone to every organ in the human body—therefore it has rightfully deserved the name it bears: HEALTH RESTORATIVE.

The Doctor, who is averse to all patent medicines, wishes it to be understood that the above medicine is no such thing; but that he has, through the introduction of this medicine with its track and directions for use, made every sufferer to be his own physician in the above named diseases.

Thinking it under my dignity to follow the mode of quacks, by appending certificates of physicians or private persons, which is too well known can be had for certain remunerations, applications of friends, or by the mode of boring a man half to death for even the most worthless trash, I will therefore leave it to those in want of medicine to inquire personally of the men who have been cured by my medicine, or of the city and village throughout the State. I consider such personal conviction far superior to certificates of persons that are far from being known to them in want of medical aid.

But should any one care for written testimonials or certificates regarding the cures performed by this medicine, they might call at my office, and I will show them certificates of true merit, which have been sent to me voluntarily, without applying for them, or by boring individuals to get them.

To satisfy the most scrupulous of men, also as a guarantee to those that have not had the opportunity of knowing the Doctor by reputation or personally, I have adjoined to every bottle of the Anti-Rheumatic Cordial, the certificate, under oath, of one of the most celebrated analytical chemists in the United States, that there are no minerals nor poisons contained in this medicine, although it is a very powerful medicine, and has a very strong action on the human system, which it necessarily must have, to overcome the action of disease of such malignant character.

ARKANSAS MODE OF ENJOYMENT.—The state of society in Arkansas was exceedingly "rough" several years since. We hope and believe it has improved latterly. The most frightful tragedies were enacted very frequently, and the people seemed to think nothing of them. A dangerous cutting serape was regarded as a rather comical affair than otherwise, as witness the following, which is substantially true:

Two desperadoes met at a tavern in Helena one evening. They were named respectively Tom Scroggs and Bill Pike. Says Scroggs:

"How's things?"
"Peart," says Pike.
"Heard you said you'd bleed me next time we met," says Scroggs.

"That's me," said Pike, and two Bowie-knives flashed fiercely forth. The fellows had carved each other pretty briskly for ten or twelve minutes, when, as Pike's ear had been shaved off, and his abdomen been several times punctured, it suddenly occurred to him that he had enough of it, and he struck his colors.

"What's all this?" tremblingly inquired a stranger who entered just as the fight ended.

"Oh, it's of no 'count," said the landlord, an ethereal creature of some two hundred and fifty pounds weight, and with a face of burn-door proportions, "it's nothin', some of the boys have been enjoying themselves a little, that's all. Won't you hist in a little pizen, stranger?" and the genial landlord set out a black bottle and a yellow bowl of brown sugar.

Curious country, that Arkansas, several years ago.

AFRICAN INNOCENCE.—The African preserves the instincts of infancy in the higher races. He astonished the enlightened De Gama some centuries ago by rejecting with disdain jewels, gold, and silver, while he caught greedily at beads and other baubles as a child snatches at a new plaything. To the present day he is the same. There is something painfully ludicrous in the expression of contentment, the intense, all absorbing admiration, and the greedy wishfulness with which he contemplates the rubbish. Yet he uses it as a toy; after sacrificing perhaps his goat or his grain to become the happy possessor of a khete, he will hang it round his neck for a few days, and then, child-like, wearied of the acquisition, he will do his best to exchange it for another. In all bargains beads must be thrown in, especially where women are concerned; their sisters of civilization would reproach themselves with an unconscious lapse into the nil admirari doctrine, so hateful to the muscular system of the age, and with a cold indifference to the charms of diamonds and pearls, could they but witness the effect of a string of scarlet porcelain upon the high-browed dames in Central Africa.—Richard F. Burton.

"Hello, Sharp!" said Pop, meeting him the other day in the street, "you hobbles, my boy; what's the matter with you?"
"Oh, I had my feet crushed through the carelessness of a conductor, the other day, between railroad cars—that's all."
"And don't you mean to sue them for damages?"
"Damages! Poh! no. Guess I've had damage enough. Hadn't I rather sue for repairs?"

CALIFORNIA EVIDENCE.
Mokelumne Hill, Cal., June 18th, 1858.
Having suffered for fifteen years with Dyspepsia, in its worst form, and having consulted with the best physicians, and tried everything recommended without relief, I was induced to try the Oxygenated Bitters, and before I had taken one bottle I found myself much better, and continued taking them until I was entirely cured, and now enjoy as good health as I ever did in my life. I take pleasure in recommending them to all who are similarly afflicted.
